The Applicants provide the following quote from their last preliminary amendment:

"IN THE ABSTRACT:

Delete everything in the current Abstract and replace it with the following commencing on a separate sheet of paper:

This disclosure presents systems, methods, apparatus, products, program products, products by process, articles of manufacturer, and business methods that relate to distributing network (e.g. web and server applications) systems, sub systems, applications, sub applications, components, modules, functions, over one or more computer networks. Alternative embodiments are disclosed for: extended environment data structures, digital asset data structures, discovery processes, export processes, digital package data structures, transactional processes, export processes, deployment processes, bridging processes, synchronizing processes, deploying processes, packaging processes, adjusting processes, digital asset packaging, scheduling and distribution systems and methods, fault-tolerant processes, J2EE based processes, transactional processes, collaboration processes, and other system, products, processes, business methods, and articles of manufacture that are related to and capable of organizing, scheduling, distributing, and/or executing digital assets and/or packages of digital assets across one or more networks (particularly multi-tiered networks) for execution on any given node of any of these networks. "

The Applicants maintain that they were responsive to the Notice to File Missing Parts (Notice) mailed 12/31/2001 because the preliminary amendment referenced above required that the Abstract be placed on a separate sheet of paper. Since the Applicants were responsive within the period of reply as set forth in the Notice, the Applicants petition that the present Application not go abandon and be examined.

A copy of the Abstract on a separate sheet of paper along with a copy of the Notice of Incomplete Reply is promptly provided herewith.

The Applicants respectfully request reconsideration and allowance of all claims.
